

Contents

Executive summary

About the authors

Chapter 1: Why there is a need for a variety of career paths
By Mitch Kowalski, thought leader and legal operations advisor

Chapter 2: The role of the professional support lawyer
By Clare Hart, partner and head of professional support, Digby Brown LLP

Chapter 3: Career paths for professional support lawyers
By Lucy Hall, client value lawyer, Shearman & Sterling LLP

Chapter 4: The evolution of knowledge management – meeting the future
By Clare Harman Clark, senior professional support lawyer, Taylor Wessing LLP

Chapter 5: Career structures in knowledge management teams
By Karen Battersby, director of knowledge and innovation, Freeths

Chapter 6: Pro bono management
By Amy Grunske, head of international pro bono, sustainability & community responsibility, Orrick

Chapter 7: Risk and compliance
By Rebecca Atkinson, director of risk and compliance, Howard Kennedy

Chapter 8: How to create a successful career in legal business development

By Anne Macdonald, partner, Harper Macleod LLP

Chapter 9: The shifting sands of talent management

By Rachel Brushfield, founder, EnergiseLegal

Chapter 10: Communications

By Hayley Geffin, head of communications & PR, Mishcon de Reya

Chapter 11: Innovation

By Amy Monaghan, practice innovation manager, Perkins Coie

Chapter 12: Legal operations

*By Tammy Heydenrych, managing consultant and Tom Evans, legal operations consultant,
Norton Rose Fulbright LLP*

Chapter 13: The role of the legal engineer

By Nina Gramcko, lawyer and legal engineer, Noerr

Chapter 14: The emerging world of ESG

By Claire Shasha, lawyer and ESG advocate

Chapter 15: Hyperspecialization and its impact on law firm careers

by Rebecca Holdredge, innovations manager, Husch Blackwell